

The Geneva based family office Amadeus Capital SA and the wealth management firm Nucleo Capital SA are merging.

Operating under the name Amadeus Capital SA the new entity becomes a Family Finlab, a company creating, developing and offering to wealthy families innovative wealth management solutions associated with foreground technology.

Controlled by Tim Brockmann and Laurent Timonier, Amadeus Capital SA sits at the very heart of an ecosystem of independent activities which forms the Amadeus group. The group's mission is to bring to its clients evolutive asset management products and services in order to address the challenges created by a legal and tax environment in constant evolution, largely interconnected financial markets and ever more internationally spread families.

Structured around three pillars, the Amadeus group offers services in the fields of asset management (investment funds with a niche approach), wealth management (discretionary portfolio management, private and non-listed investment advice) and private office (asset accumulation and diversification strategies, inheritance planning and administration, family finance management).

In order to secure its asset management practice and the surveillance of investments as well as to report the latter in the most complete and transparent possible manner, the Amadeus group has for decades been developing sophisticated portfolio management and consolidation software. This integrated and reliable technological universe gives its clients a unique opportunity to permanently have access to a 360-degree view on their global assets.

"We invest alongside our clients and thereby offer them a total alignment of interest. Additionally, having organized and managed assets since the early years of Amadeus we are able to offer today weathered and constantly updated solutions", explains Tim Brockmann.

"Significantly doted in assets, our group intends to play an active role in the consolidation process which affects independent asset management and family office activities in Switzerland and in Europe. However, we are not a platform; our ambition is to integrate teams of private bankers or firms resembling us and our clients", continues Laurent Timonier.

The Amadeus group employs 17 people and manages CHF 2 billion of assets, of which 1.2 billion of listed securities and CHF 800 million of tangible private assets (real-estate, industrial and commercial participations).

About Amadeus Capital SA

Amadeus Capital SA is a family office created in 1983 to manage and handle the assets of the founders' families and their close friends. A lawyer by education, Tim Brockmann was active in the field of alternative asset management before he was called upon to take over the reins of the family business.

About Nucleo Capital SA

Nucleo Capital SA was founded in 2005 by Laurent Timonier to manage the financial and real-estate assets of European and Swiss families which have followed him all along a corporate and private banking career started in 1986.
